

Rock of Ages Farm

Not surprisingly, Laura and Bradley Matchett met on a farm. Laura, a native of Scotland, has loved farm life ever since she was a child. She is a qualified horseback riding instructor, a member of the British Horse Society, and worked in riding schools in Norway, Italy and England before coming to Canada. In the late nineties while working as the Manager of a training barn at Gardner Farms in Caledon East she met Brad who was handling stallions in the breeding division. Brad has years of experience as a wrangler and worked as a ranch hand in California and western Canada before returning to his home province of Ontario.

The Matchetts' farm, Rock of Ages, is a mixed operation counting among its residents, horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, goats, ducks, geese, turkeys and pheasants. All their animals are taken to the market at less than one year of age to ensure that the meat is lean and tender. They sell produce from the farm gate and are happy to take custom orders and make deliveries.

Brad and Laura value the way of life on a traditional, family farm. They recently started offering farm vacation packages which allow visitors to share that experience. You can rent a cabin in a quiet corner of the property where you'll enjoy horseback riding and participate as much or as little as you want in farm activities. Farm-fresh produce is supplied for your meals and a variety of vacation packages are available.
